

MARIST COLLEGE

Catholic School for Girls Years 7 to 13

Term 3 - Number 9
Friday, 15 September 2023

From the Principal

On the 14th of September 1972, the Māori Language Petition was presented to Parliament. With over 30,000 signatures, the petition played a significant role in the journey to revitalise Te Reo Māori by calling for the government to recognise the language as sacred to Aotearoa. The petition was a fundamental moment in the history of Te Reo Māori - reclaiming its place as an official New Zealand language.

Te Wiki o Te Reo Māori is an opportunity to reflect on our own personal journeys with Te Reo Māori. As a school it is an important time to remember how far we have come in our ability to offer Te Reo Māori as a subject. It is also an opportunity to review our part in contributing to our nation's goal of having one million Te Reo Māori speakers by 2040.

Thank you to our Kaiawhina, students and staff who organised events and activities to make this week a true celebration of language and culture.

A special thank you to Whaea Jane who worked with our students to make enough fried bread to feed the school. Ngā mihi nui.

Every four years the Catholic Education Office visit Marist College to review our school policies and practices. The focus of the review is to ensure that we are providing a full and holistic Catholic education for all of our students. It is an opportunity to celebrate our success and set goals for the next four years. Preparation and planning for a review takes time, with many staff taking on extra responsibilities to ensure that the review team have an authentic Marist experience. Thank you to our staff, students and parent community who have dedicated their time to support the school and the review team.

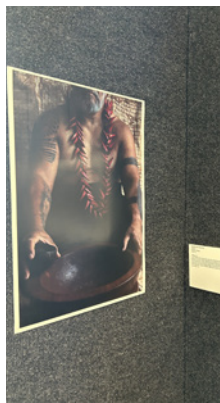

Today we acknowledged eight of our Marist artists whose works were selected to be part of the Ringa Toi NZQA Toi Maori and Toi Moana exhibition at Te Papa. The students are Jackie Ah Lin, Malia Brown, Lucy de Young Hakaraia, Sarah Dickson, Faith Fruean, Brooke Sorenson Ella Tofaeono and Fidellis Lili'i-Amiomo.

Four of them made the trip to Pōneke for the opening on Wednesday, where they participated in an artist run workshop and behind the scenes tour of Te Papa. An extra special congratulations goes to Fidellis, who was awarded a commendation in the Toi Whaka-ahua category. It's a huge honour to have their work exhibited in such a special place and to see their work recognised for its high standard in Aotearoa.

HETTANZ Fashion Awards

These are the 5 Marist College entries for the 2023 HETTANZ Fashion Awards. The results will be published in Term 4. I wish each student all the best and thank them for the excellent effort in delivering their designs to such an exciting level.

Hilary Roy

"It was so much fun making the tote bags in class! I really enjoyed learning how to sew a bag and how to apply a design to it."

Aline Hamiaux Year 8 – Bag

"My top is inspired by the aspects of Victorian clothing in the 19th century. I've included an empire waistline, flower patterned fabric, as flowers were used to compliment the hats they wore back then, and lastly a lace up back to make sure it would fit nicely."

Grace Mary Bayouk Year 9 - Green flowery pattern summer top

"My garment was inspired by 19th century British waistcoats. I thought the structure of the garments were interesting, and unique. They inspired me to make something that I would wear on special occasions. The garment is made out of black calico fabric."

Mia Merrick Year 9 - Black halter neck waistcoat

"The theme I tried to go for was a Halloween-y vibe, taking clear inspiration from Frankenstein's monster, more specifically Sally the Frankenstein girl from Tim Burton's 'The Nightmare Before Christmas'. I feel like I achieved that with the scrappy, hastily stitched together appearance which, ironically, actually had hours of effort put into it."

Molly Flynn Year 11 - Colourful patch-like dress

"This dress was meticulously crafted with my Year 13 Marist Ball in mind, aiming for a design that would not only stand out, but be ethereal and uniquely me. I opted for a pearly mint green satin fabric for the dress, featuring exquisite details like seashell cups, corset structuring, and an invisible zip for a sleek, seamless appearance. To add a touch of elegance, I included a nicely draped train, creating a mermaid-like image. Nearly two terms were dedicated to the creation of this dress, and the final result surpassed my initial imagination. This enchantingly dreamy satin gown gleamed with a gentle pearl-like glow, fulfilling my teenage dream of wearing a stunning dress I had crafted for my last high school ball."

Leticia Ngui Year 13 -Glorious ballgown

International Update

We say sayonara to Aoi who is leaving us after one term here at Marist College. We'll miss her energy, enthusiasm and her friendly smile around school. Aoi not only had a very busy school schedule and daily outside interests but she also carved out time after school on Thursdays to teach Japanese in the House. Her last lesson is this week and there promises to be something a little extra!

Thank you so much Aoi for choosing Marist College and thank you to the buddies that looked after Aoi so warmly and we hope to see you again here or in Japan, さようなら!

ACCKA (Auckland Central Catholic Kāhui Ako) Matters

Happy Te Wiki O Te Reo Māori

On Wednesday evening, we held our second kāhui ako Māori Mass at Christ the King Church led by Pā Tipene. It was a wonderful celebration of Te Ao Māori and a fantastic way for ākonga and whānau to come together in unity, for prayer. 'Waiho I te toipoto, kaua I te toirua.'

A massive thank you to Trade Depot!

Scott Riley, Chief Executive of Trade Depot has kindly donated a new washing machine to the Food Technology room. Thank you Stella Riley 8M and Scott Riley for this very generous donation.

Much appreciated.
